Program overview

Format: hands-on workshop · 3 hours

Teacher Workflows That Benefit First

- Identify the recurring teaching tasks where AI creates the most value first: assignment briefs, lesson preparation, quizzes, feedback, reports, parent communication, and differentiated support materials.

Assessment, Integrity, and Student Guidance

- Adapt assessment in an AI-enabled classroom through oral defence, process logs, rubric changes, disclosure rules, and clearer guidance for students on when AI helps learning and when it weakens it.

Data Privacy and Protection in Schools

- Clarify what teachers should and should not paste into AI tools, how to avoid exposing student-identifiable information, and how to model safe AI behaviour.

Program overview

Module 2 of 2 — practical exercises, real workflows, and reviewable outputs.

From Better Prompts to Better Structure

- Move beyond isolated prompts and learn how projects, saved instructions, reusable assistants, and selected agentic workflows make teacher support more consistent and scalable.
